UNNECESSARY ADVICE

President Roosevelt's critics say he is playing dog-in-the-manger. They say if he has decided not to run again he should announce the decision at once, thus clearing the air.

The Courier-Journal has already stated that it hopes, and thinks, the President will not run again. But it also hopes, and thinks, the President will not say so yet awhile. The Courier-Journal believes Mr. Roosevelt would be neglecting his duty if he took himself out of the running at this point.

The American political system demands that the President act both as head of the Nation and as head of a political party. Perhaps the system is bad; but until we change it we have got to make it work.

Mr. Roosevelt will cease to be head of his party the minute he announces that under no conditions will be consider a third term. He will cease to be head; but until the Convention has chosen a presidential candidate there will be no one to take Mr. Roosevelt's place.

If he were to step down now he would condemn the party to months of wandering inanely without even the semblance of leadership. He would hand the party over to "chaos and old night." He would increase many-fold the chances of Democratic defeat next November.

We expect to see a lively draft-Roosevelt campaign during the next few months. When the time comes we do not expect the President to permit himself to be drafted. But we do expect him to use his full strength at the Convention to secure candidates who will not be abhorrent to followers of the New Deal.

If Mr. Roosevelt were to step down now he would have no strength at the Convention, no voice in determining his successor, or the successor of Vice President Garner. He would have abdicated prematurely the leadership of the party—a leadership given him by the vote of his myriad followers. He would have dodged one of his major responsibilities. He would have helped nobody but his opponents.—Courier-Journal.

HEAVENLY CREW

Lonely, I sit here and wonder When all of life's lessons are done, When the heavens are opened to greet me,

It wouldn't seem right to be there Where from pain and death we are free Without the presence of Henry, Tevis, and old L. B.

I would like to see Old Jacob And shake hands with Peter and Paul In that Eden of Rest o'er yonder, Where the shades of night never fall. But I would be more contented And fewer tears I would shed If up there I could mix and mingle With Henry, L. B. and Ted.

Gayly, we'd stroll together Down streets that are paved with gold And we'd sing the songs of Glory In the land where we never grow old. On the banks of Cannan's River, I stroll so happy and free 'Mongst roses that never shall wither With Ted, Henry and L. B.

We'd build the highways of heaven Supervise the heavenly schools, Keep time with the Sainted Angels And check the golden tools. No mistakes on our 720 Never expecting a 403

What a time we would have in heaven Me, Henry, Ted, and L. B.

So, oh Lord, prepare us a mansion On Cannan's peaceful shore, Make it neat and cozy And plenty of room for four, For I couldn't be satisfied up ehere Dear God as you plainly see Unless you could make room also For Henry, Ted and L. B.

Dedicated to Henry L. Stacy, L. B. Wells, and Tevis Hugely, by the author, RUSSELL BARKER. Written October 31, 1939.

Deputy Sheriff Shot

Want Electric Service

The people on Long Branch and mostly out of the town limits to the number of twelve or fifteen in a mile stretch are taking steps to get connections for electric service. Here is a bunch of thrifty home owners and they are surely entitled to this modern convenience if they want it.

HOMES BURN

On Tuesday evening, January 30, the fine farm home of Robert Patrick several miles east of town was destroyed by fire. Both Mr. and Mrs. Patrick had come to town leaving the children at home. No lives were lost but nearly all the contents were consumed by the flames.

On Friday morning, February 2, the home on Wells Hill belonging to Walter Davis and occupied by John Brown and wife and Willie Brown and family was burned to the ground. Fire started when a kerosene lamp set on a mantle above a grate with fire in it exploded. Most of the contents of the house belonging to the two families were lost.

COUNTRY HAM SUPPER

A group gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Price Saturday night, February 3, for a Rook Party. They discovered it was Mrs. Price's birthday and surprised her with lovely gifts.

At a late hour Mrs. Price with the assistance of her daughters served a plate lunch of country ham, French fried potatoes, pineapple salad, cake and coffee.

GOOD WORD FOR ARNETT

Floyd D. Arnett was designated as special judge of the Carter Circuit Court to try a case here last Friday in civil docket of Lowe vs. Lowe in which quite a sum was represented. The Judge, Roscoe Littleton, was not qualified to set in the case for reasons making him thus by law. Judge Arnett is one of the best qualified lawyers of the district, and several years ago had quite an ambition to be judge of this district, and was only defeated by 36 votes when the smoke cleared away after ballot counting.

He is a banker and business man as well as a lawyer and knows something of the various walks of life, and he would make this or any other district, or so far as that is concerned, he would do credit to fill any of the judgeships on the Appellate Court of the state. No better selection can be made than Floyd Arnett when the Court of Appeals looks for these men to serve Kentucky.—Carter County Herald.

LADIES AID MEETING

The Ladies Aid Society of the Cannel City Union church met with Mrs. Asa Carter February 1 for a regular business meeting. Members present were: Mrs. Asa Carter, Mrs. G. W. Leslie, Mrs. J. D. Whiteaker, Miss Oma Zornes, Miss Sallie Minor, Mrs. D. P. Peyton, Mrs. A. E. Sebastian, Mrs. W. T. Stamper, Inez Donovan. The president, Mrs. Whiteaker, was in charge, reading fifteenth chapter John "Sweet Hour of Prayer" was sung, after which Mrs. Carter led in prayer.

A special song "Life's Railway to Heaven" was sung by Mrs. Peyton and Mrs. Leslie.

After all business was transacted another song was sung, "Tis so Sweet to Trust in Jesus." Mrs. Whiteaker dismissed with prayer.

The hostess assisted by Mrs. Leslie and Miss Zornes served delicious refreshments of butterscotch pie and coffee.

After a pleasant afternoon, we adjourned to meet with the vice president Mrs. W. T. Stamper, February 15.

CHARACTER AS COLLATERAL

Almost thirty years ago the House Banking and Currency Committee investigated the "money trust" and brought out some interesting facts, among them the thought of some big bankers that the situation in the United States was getting out of hand.

Along with other members of the committee Carter Glass, of Virginia, then a member of the House, studied the legislation that was needed. As a result of the report submitted, with President Wilson's endorsement in 1913, there was enacted into law what is now known as the Federal Reserve Act.

Interesting to recall is the testimony of the elder J. P. Morgan who, on the stand, denied that commercial credit was based primarily "upon money or property." He insisted that "the first thing is character" and that it came before "money or property."

It is gratifying that a great banker placed character so high in his estimation but, just the same, we suspect that "money and property" come first in the eyes of practically all bankers when considering loans. Certainly, character is a great asset but if you want to know how valuable it is, from the standpoint of a loan, select a man with the finest character that you know, who happens to be hard up, as the saying goes, and trot him to the nearest bank for a loan.

Without intending to reflect upon the personnel of our banking institutions, who have their responsibilities in connection with the money they lend, your "finest character" will find today, as in any other day, collateral is what it takes to secure a loan.

SHOWER FOR MRS. WEBB

Monday, February 5, at 8 p.m., the many friends of Mrs. Nelson Webb of Vanceburg, formerly Miss Margaret M. Brong of here, met at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Mrs. Webb expressed her sincere appreciation for the lovely presents. People's Column

West Liberty, Ky., Feb. 6, 1940
To the Editor of the Licking Valley Courier

Dear Sir:

I am writing this letter on a matter of both civic and business importance. Several persons have spoken to me about the condition of the street and sidewalks here in West Liberty and have expressed the idea that they believe this is a matter for the Morgan County Health Department to attend to. The Health Department can only intervene in matters where the health of the community is concerned.

All first impressions are said to be lasting and indeed we know that they are important to us as individuals. What we do not realize is that they are just as important to communities as to persons. What do you imagine is the first impression of West Liberty when a visitor enters it for the first time? It is not complimentary to say the least. I have often heard people say that West Liberty is one of the dirtiest towns in eastern Kentucky and any one who has walked along our streets during the past few days can vouch for the truthfulness of this statement.

I am writing this letter not as an official of the health department but as a private citizen. I believe it is poor business and a reflection on our civic pride to allow the streets to remain in this condition any longer. Can not something be done to correct this situation. A year or two ago one of the towns in this section of the state received nation wide recognition for doing just this thing. Surely West Liberty could stand the cleaning and whatever recognition when done with the job.

Cordially yours,
WILLIAM L. WRIGHT, M.D.

Funeral services were held from the home February 7, 1940, by Rev. Harlen Murphy. The body was laid to rest in the family cemetery in Neal Valley.

MAY

Jennie Lee May was born May 5, 1832, and died Monday, February 5, 1940. She was converted and became a member of the White Oak Christian church at the age of about 16 years and lived a true devoted Christian life in her Christ until death and as the passing hour drew near she was drawn closer to Jesus.

Sister May became affiliated with Paulina Chapter 360, Order of the Eastern Star, West Liberty, Ky., in 1930, and was a very active member, and was delighted with and enjoyed the association and work of the order, but always gave the church work preference.

She leaves a host of relatives and friends to mourn her departure.

Funeral services were conducted at the Christian church Tuesday by Rev. Harlen Murphy, assisted by Rev. Kenneth Clay, followed by Eastern Star rites. Burial was in the White Oak cemetery.

FARMERS' COLUMN

BOY CORN CHAMPION

Growing 100 bushels and 11 pounds of corn on an acre made Eugene Blankenship, a Morgan county boy, the Kentucky 4-H club champion for 1939. The land was laid off with a single shovel plow, the seed planted by hand, and the corn hoed and cultivated three times. Limestone, superphosphate and commercial fertilizer were used to stimulate yield, but Eugene had to contend with worms and flood. Yandall Wreather, county agent, says 100 bushels is about four times the average corn yield in Morgan county.

The second-best 4-H club corn production last year was 94 1/4 bushels to the acre, made by Bobby Fuson of Bell county who was the Kentucky champion in 1937, when he grew 135 bushels on an acre.

Another Eastern Kentucky boy, Elster Ratliff of Pike county, placed third in the 1939 contest. His acre of mountain valley land produced 86 bushels of Johnson County White corn. Two hundred pounds of superphosphate was used on the acre, and the land had been in lespedeza three years.

ASKED TO FILE 1940 PLANS

Farm plans outlining soil conservation practices to be carried out by Kentucky farmers cooperating with the 1940 Agricultural Conservation program must be filed in county offices by April 15, the State Agricultural Adjustment Office has announced.

Completion of these plans is necessary before farmers become eligible to participate in the conservation program this year. Crop allotments and approved conservation practices, compiled from county Agricultural Conservation Program office figures and from farmers' reports, will be outlined in the plans.

Each farmer will be notified when his plan is to be completed. County offices expect to complete all farm plans at the time 1939 conservation checks are distributed, and so farmers are expected to be prepared at that time to outline their conservation practices for the year.

A copy of the completed plan for each farm, giving the farmer's soil-building allowance for the year and describing ways by which this allowance can be earned, will be provided for the farm operator.

Since the 1940 program year ends August 31, farmers who desire grants of aid this year are also being urged to complete applications for grant of aid materials by that time. These materials are supplied to the farmer by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration and the costs of the materials deducted from the farmer's soil-building allowance.

Triple superphosphate again will be available for grants of aid in all Kentucky counties, and ground limestone is being supplied by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in lieu of cash payments, in several counties.

FEEDING THE TURKEY HENS

Poultry experts at the College of Agriculture at Lexington suggest to Kentucky turkey raisers that it is time to begin feeding hens to stimulate laying for the hatching season. Any good chicken laying mash will do. To make one at home mix 200 pounds of meat scrap and 5 pounds of salt. A quart of fish oil per 100 pounds of feed helps. Limestone or oyster shell should be kept before the hens.

A turkey hen weighing about 15 pounds on full feed will eat approximately 2 1/2 pounds per week during the early spring months. A mature tom will consume about twice this amount.

Stills

Airplanes are being used by the Treasury Department to spot illicit stills in mountain hideaways. This is shown by the annual report of Secretary Morgenthau who says that Coast Guard aviators spotted 923 of the 11,425 stills seized or destroyed by the Alcohol Tax Unit last year.

WHAT'S HAPPENED? In Europe

by Dr. Charles M. Knapp
UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY

Again we have to report that along the western front none of the belligerents seem to have been carrying on active military operations. In the air warfare the situation has been somewhat different. German communiques have all week claimed that numbers of British patrol boats, mine sweepers, merchant vessels, belligerent and neutral, convoyed and unconvoyed, have been sunk in increasing numbers. However, these claims have been just as vigorously denied by Britain. The latter has admitted that vessels have been hit but not sunk, and that they have made their way into ports. Apparently this greater activity against British shipping the past week has been exerted from the air and not by submarines. That Britain has suffered larger shipping losses during the last week is indicated most surely by the vigor of the British denials. The losses, however, seem to have been in numbers of ships damaged, not in total tonnage of the ships. The ships attacked apparently were small ships operating in the North Sea, not very distant from the British coast. On the other hand Britain has claimed that in each air raid they have shot down several planes. There have been no claims that British counter attacks upon German bases in the North Sea had been attempted.

The censors have finally admitted and permitted the publication of weather reports for the British Isles and the continent. The absence of such information since the outbreak of the war has been a great handicap to all navigators of ships in the Atlantic. As a result of these news releases we know now that the severe weather that has been reported so frequently by the Finns has not been confined to Finland. The British Isles and all of northern Europe, including Holland, France and Germany, have suffered from the coldest weather on record. Shortage of fuel everywhere has been admitted. These places hardest hit have been the cities in Holland and Germany where so much dependence is placed upon canals and rivers, transportation facilities have been severely disrupted. Weather conditions thus also have been one of the reasons why there has been so little activity along the western front. In Finland all of the northern armies on both sides seem to have reached a condition of stalemate, probably due to the weather. The Finns say that they are allowing the weather to do their work for them while harassing the movement of supplies up to the advanced Russian positions North of Lake Ladoga. The Russians are reported to have been beaten back in their attempts to out-flank the Mannerheim line positions. Also against the line itself heavy attacks are reported to have been repulsed with terrible losses to the Russians. The real extent of these reported Finnish victories at this time is impossible to determine. The Finns have obtained the sympathy and attention of the world by their gallant stand and as propaganda they are likely to continue to make the most out of it while they can. They have admitted again during the week that unless help comes in large amounts they must face the probability of disaster. Russian air raids have been more numerous and productive of much greater damage this week than ever before.

Beginning on Friday a meeting of representatives of the Balkan Entente powers was held at Belgrade under the general auspices of Italy which has been striving to allay the tension there existing because of the friction between Rumania and Hungary and Bulgaria. The latter have wanted Rumania to return territories she acquired at the close of the World War. German and English and French representatives were interested in either holding or increasing their economic advantages. Mussolini has been interested in forming a Balkan block to present united front against any Russian aggression. Britain and France have been trying to buy up all their products. Germany has tried to threaten them into increasing their exports to her.

Rape for Hogs

Cecil Blair, Adair county, is planning to sow an acre of rape in March for spring hog pasture. The land will be well broken, fertilizer applied and the soil worked down to a fine seed-bed. The seed will be broadcast at the rate of 10 to 12 pounds to the acre and covered lightly. It should be ready to pasture within six weeks, and should furnish pasture for 12 or 15 hogs. An acre of rape sometimes saves as much as 50 bushels of corn in feeding a bunch of hogs, says County Agent R. B. Rankin.

WASHINGTON NOTES

Trade

Exports from the United States in December amounted to $368,000,000, the highest month since March, 1930, and imports were $247,000,000, or the year, 1939, total exports were $3,177,000,000, a gain of three percent over 1938. Imports amounted to $2,318,000,000, eighteen percent ahead of the previous year.

Finland

The proposal to make a loan to Finland is meeting with considerable opposition. Congress seems reluctant to assume responsibility for a loan limited to non-military supplies. The fear is that it will be a precedent to make similar loans to other belligerents.

Farley

Political prognosticators are attempting to find implications in the recent declaration of Postmaster General James A. Farley that "I love my country better than I love the Democratic Party." Some assert that it was his opening bid for the Democratic nomination. Significance is seen in the treatment of many issues outside his own official office, which, it is asserted, exhibits interest and knowledge of subjects usually discussed by those who have higher office in view.

Volunteers

Americans enlisting in the fighting forces of foreign governments will not lose their citizenship, says the President, unless they take an oath of allegiance to the nation for which they fight.

Walter Johnson

Walter Johnson, one of baseball's most famous pitchers, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination to the House of Representatives from Maryland's Sixth District.

Army Day

A stiffening of national defense does not mean increased likelihood of war, says the President in a letter endorsing Army Day, which will be celebrated on April 6th. "On the contrary," said the Chief Executive, "a position of readiness for defense actually lessens the danger of involvement."

Income

Income payments to individuals in 1939, compared with 1938, show a gain of five percent. The Department of commerce reports that total individual incomes in 1939 were $69,700,000,000, compared with $66,300,000,000, in 1938. In 1929, the record was $82,700,000,000. The Department says, "In view of lower price levels in 1939, the quantity of goods and services produced last year is approximately the same as in 1929."

Arms

In December, licenses for the export of arms amounted to a value of $35,262,313. Meanwhile, the State Department reveals that the European War sent our arms export business to $204,555,780 in 1939, more than double the total for 1938.

Employment

Non-agricultural employment in December was 1,200,000 greater than in the same month of 1938, according to Secretary of Labor Perkins.

Don't be down on something simply because you are not up on it.—Kentucky Farm Bureau News.

A picturesque barefoot figure, known only as Brother John, gave away more than 1,000 quarters on the streets of Los Angeles, Calif., one day last week before cops scattered the crowd. He told them the money was an accumulation from state pension checks and funds given to him by friends, and that he was "tired of having money."—Dawson Springs Progress.

Mr. David G. Holsclaw, of the Canip neighborhood, born and reared in Trimble county, was 82 years of age Tuesday and the occasion was quietly celebrated at his home. Mr. Holsclaw is as active as a man much younger. He is as erect as an Indian, full of "pep" and can walk as far as any man in the county. He has many friends who hope he will round out the century mark; being one of our good citizens.—Trimble Democrat.

William Carter, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Carter, 75 Fitch avenue, who sustained a fractured skull in an automobile accident on the Grimes Mill Road, 13 miles from Winchester, on Sunday, January 14, was removed to his home Sunday afternoon from the Guerrant clinic where he had been under treatment since the time of the accident. Young Carter, whose condition still is considered serious, was unconscious for 11 days following the wreck.—Winchester Sun.

February Magazines

"The Household Magazine," a favorite home magazine with a large number of American women, has a fine bill of fare for February. Fiction, fashions and articles on homemaking are interspersed so as to make the whole a pleasing and restful source of information and recreation.

The United States News, a weekly review of official Washington in its magazine form is more easy to read, more easy to file and an all around more serviceable publication for the busy reader. Articles are somewhat less lengthy but still comprehensive. It is the best review of political events coming to our desk.

"The Youths Companion Combined with American Boy" closes a particularly interesting Serial, "Son of the Apple Valley," in this issue. The March number will begin a new serial. Two or three short stories of interest to boys and the regular departments make the magazine particularly worth while to all worth while boys.

"Hollands" the household magazine of the south with its trio of flamingos as an introduction is a harbinger of spring. "The First Mrs. Tayoda" is the outstanding story. "Beauty and Fashion" has two fine articles. "Home and Garden" department overflows with good and seasonal and helpful articles. "The Children" department has an article on "The Young American" of more than usual merit.

Some people have the mistaken idea that most of our automobile accidents occur on bad roads under bad conditions and on curves and hills. It is true that some of our most serious accidents occur at these spots and under such conditions, but here are some facts that have been developed by the National Safety Council on a nationwide basis:

- Four out of five accidents occur on a straight stretch of road.
- Four out of five accidents occur on dry roads in clear weather.
- Some of the causes for these accidents are:
 1. Exceeding the speed limit or driving too fast for existing conditions.
 2. Driving on wrong side of the road.
 3. Disregarding stop sign or signal.
 4. Cutting in.
 5. Passing on curves or hills.
- Check these five causes. How often have you been guilty of these violations?

Pruning, Training and Control San Jose Scale

The best time to prune grape vines is in February. Some of the boys suggest why not in the fall. The reason for this is that some of the new vines are not mature and as the result freeze out that winter. After February there would have been enough freeze to freeze all of the vines out that would die.

The way to prune grape vines is to remove all dead, injured and diseased vines and leave the young vines. The way to tell the young vines is they are redder than the old vines.

It is not desirable to prune when the vines are frozen because the vines are brittle and much damage may be done.

After planting cut back of the young vines to a few buds, two or three left on the strong cane being ample. The young vines may be allowed to run on the ground for the first season.

The best way to train grape vines is by the Kniffem system because they are easy to prune and the sun light gets to them better.

The way to make the kniffem system is to set 4 or 5 posts in a straight line and stretch 3 or 4 wires on the post 1 foot apart.

The way to prevent the San Jose scale is to spray in the dormant season or just after pruning, with oil emulsion 2 percent kerosene and water with soap to make it spread.

Chapter Meeting

The M. C. H. S. chapter of the F. F. A. held its regular meeting in the agricultural room February 6, 1940. We had a report from the committee. Most of the chairmen had a report. The earning and saving worked out some things to do to raise money for the chapter. The conduct of meeting met and worked out one of the plans which is to plan and post program for meetings in at least one week in advance of date of meeting.

The recreation committee met Friday, January 26, and did not do anything but tried to improve what we already did.

The meeting was adjourned until our next meeting or until a meeting is called by our president, Ford Meadows.—Walter Oldfield, Reporter.

THANKS TO PROJECT!

Last week through the columns of THE COURIER we extended our thanks to all who made contributions to our various booths at the winter carnival. Since The Courier was almost ready to go to press when the carnival ended, we did not have time to publish all that we wished to about the carnival. This week we desire especially to thank the Home Making Project under the supervision of Mrs. Opie McKenzie and Miss Mary L. Lynch for planning, designing and constructing all the costumes used in the coronation of the king and queen. These costumes were very beautiful and elaborate and certainly required good judgment, skill, and sewing technique in their designing and construction and we feel that to fail to make public mention of those who made them would indeed be ungrateful. These two young women and the girls who work with them have at all times shown not only willingness to cooperate with the school but also a fervent desire. In making these costumes they curtailed the expenses of the winter carnival approximately twenty-five dollars. These costumes are now school property and are being kept for the carnival next year. The value that this project has been to our school alone is inestimable. In addition it has saved the parents much expense and has done much toward helping the young girls of our county to become model homemakers. Therefore, we the costume committee, desire in behalf of the school to extend deep gratitude to The Home Making Project for having rendered so great a service to our school.

SENSE OF RESPONSIBILITY

Greatly to be encouraged are a child's sense of responsibility and the ability to make decisions, says Mrs. Mary Mumford Van Dine, in charge of the nursery school of the University of Kentucky, economics department. If a parent always demands instant and absolute obedience, the child may have the sense of responsibility weakened and develop the habit of thrusting his decisions off on others. This may have serious results later.

Naturally, a three-year-old who has just seen a store full of toys is not capable of deciding which he should have on his birthday. If the decision is left to him, he may choose an expensive toy and one of which he will quickly tire. Usually he will want something brightly colored, that moves with great speed or often an electrically-run toy. A week later he may be much bored with it. In cases such as this, or in more serious decisions, advice should be given by parents.

On the other hand, if sometimes a child is allowed to make his own decision and later to see that it was unwise, then he promptly realizes the logic of the discipline that comes as naturally as cause and effect. If he dawdles through supper, for instance, and so misses out on the story hour later, he may see that he has disciplined himself.

It is up to the adult to point out the consequences, to give the child the choice between two possibilities. Then if the youngster chooses wrongly, he will see that his power of decision has been misused.

The child will have to trust his own mind later; it is well for him to learn to do it early, and to make wise choices.
